

NEWSLETTER: FEBRUARY 2017

WOW I am so excited 2017 is bringing me the opportunity to have the top experiences on my bucket list that I have only dreamed about and put out for manifestation through my Vision Board! I am going on Kapacha's Dolphin Retreat at Bimini in the Bahamas this July and then visiting Sedona in Arizona for a week, to experience the wonderful energy and Native American Indian culture first hand. I asked Kapacha if he could reschedule his Dolphin experience retreat in 2017, when I worked with him at the CIA retreat at Healesville in November 2015! So I couldn't believe it when it came up in his first Pele report in January! I booked in straight away and decided as I am in the US I might as well fulfill another top bucket list item and connect to the Indian energy up around Sedona. It was so exciting booking all the flights and I managed to find a magical place to stay in Sedona, complete with my own hot tub out under the stars on AirBnB! I had thought to visit Sedona if I got to speak at UAC in 2018, but now I am soooo glad I didn't, because this will be so much more of an inspirational experience! It will also inspire me to get really fit, lose the final few kilos I have set in my goals and learn to get my breathing right in my swimming, not keep my head up all the time! I am planning to have a few private lessons at the new swimming school at Input where I do my aqua aerobics classes. I have already booked into the CIA Star Camp at Honeymoon Gap up near Alice Springs just after Easter sleeping in swags under the stars for a few nights, so it seems 2017 leading up to my birthday in August will be all about being in nature and exploring ancient cultures. Makes sense to the second end of a 7 personal year in Numerology I guess! I had a bit of writer's block over Christmas and for the beginning of January. I was just strongly drawn to getting my home and garden clean and tidy the energy was so strong around that and getting down to the beach for a swim whenever possible. I have also spent much time working on my own chart around cycles that are returning, researching material for my talk at the VAA on February 18 and the article I was committed to write about for the "Horizons" magazine preceding it. I have been doing a lot of inner work with Pluto just beginning to oppose my natal Saturn for the first time but it all feels good. The Moons have been very strong leading up to the eclipse season. I do love celebrating the Full Moons with my tribe from the CIA, and had a great time with them for the Cancer Full Moon, so symbolic watching her rise in the sky, sitting next to all that Pisces energy from Julija Simas, who is a fellow Cancer North Node with me, with our feet dangling in her swimming pool lol! I purchased myself a fire pit so I could hold a New Moon party to usher in the Year of the Fire Rooster with the Aquarius New Moon, it squared my MC/IC and the following Leo Full Moon will be conjunct my Ascendant, both within one degree, so it feels like I'm up for some exciting changes ahead. It feels great to have met all of my end of month deadlines with writing and videos and be back into the swing of blogging more regularly and posting about the asteroids on facebook again most days. So sad to hear of Roderick Kidston's passing, he was such a great mentor to me when I was starting out on my asteroid journey and such a lovely generous soul. He will be missed by us all in the astrological community. Looking forward to our first CIA Astro Info Group on Friday evening at the Seaford Community Centre, where we are focusing on working with the upcoming eclipses in your chart! Contact me if you would like to join us!

RESEARCH ON MYSTICAL ASTEROIDS

Many asteroids have been named after characters from myth, including Greek and Egyptian Gods, Goddesses and individuals associated with healing, oracular practice and magic. The research I am working on studies the mythical archetypes associated with a selection of these bodies and researches their impact when included in the natal charts of around 200 present and historical individuals involved in oracular practice, magic, healing and astrology. I have validated my findings through studying a control group of scientists, rationalists and astronomers who reject the validity of working with spirit or any method which lacks physical, cause and effect validation. I am now at the stage of completing my analysis and have to decide how to communicate my findings, which I hope to finalize soon. I am also working with aligning the same Goddess archetypes to "gift markings" in the hand, which also can be related to intuitive abilities. I am happy to report that I am getting my focus back together on my asteroids and mythology through the preparation I went through for my Sydney talk, the planning for my myth workshop in March and the research for my monthly videos on the intuitive minor planets for the CIA Collective Membership.

ARCHETYPE OF THE MONTH: OSIRIS

Osiris is the Egyptian god of the afterlife, the underworld and the dead. He is usually depicted as a green-skinned man with a pharaoh's beard, wrapped like a mummy from the chest down, wearing the distinctive Atef crown with two large ostrich feathers at either side. Osiris was considered the oldest son of the Earth god Geb and the sky goddess Nut, brother and husband of Isis, Horus his post-humously begotten son.

He was murdered by his evil brother Set, representing the shadow side, who was jealous of his power and popularity. Set tricked him into lying in a beautiful coffin, which he would gift to the person who it fitted exactly, he had constructed it to Osiris' personal dimensions! He then sealed him inside and cast the coffin into the Nile. The coffin floated out into the sea and came ashore at Byblos in Syria, where it was flung into a tamarisk bush which quickly grew into a mighty tree, enclosing the coffin. Isis searched far and wide to discover his body and returned it to Egypt for ceremonial burial, so he could move on to await her in the afterlife. Set found the coffin again and cut the body into 14 pieces scattering them across the land for the crocodiles to eat. But the crocodiles wouldn't eat Osiris flesh, as he was sacred to the Nile, only his phallus disappeared, swallowed by a cat fish. Isis once again searched Egypt for the body parts, establishing temples to Osiris wherever they were found. She fashioned a gold replacement for the missing phallus and with the help of Thoth and the Falcon Gods, she used her magic to resurrect the body, bringing Osiris back to life for long enough to impregnate her, in the form of a kite.

"Osiris represents the ability to overcome our shadow side, recreating our self and then being able to help others through their transformative journey"
